Two Civilians Quit Venezuela Ruling Junta

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The two civilian members of Venezuela's five-man ruling junta resigned Sunday.

No reason was announced for the resignation of the civilians, Eugenio Mendoza and Blas Lambert. An informed source said Mendoza quit because of disagreement with the military members, but gave no details.

The junta took over the job of running the government last January after dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez was overthrown.

The other three members are Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal, Col. Pedro Quevedo and Col. Carlos Luis Araque. Larrazabal is the junta head.

Caracas, scene of bitter demonstrations against U. S. Vice President Nixon last Tuesday, was quiet but tense Sunday night in the wake of the political developments.

There was a report that three Cabinet ministers also had resigned, but that could not be confirmed.

Earlier, it was reported that seven high officials in the old Perez Jimenez regime had been arrested on orders of the Interior Ministry.

25 Arrested In Beer Riot

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Twenty-five University of Florida men students were arrested early Sunday during a five-hour riot which followed a crackdown on sale of beer to minors.

Chanting "we want beer," over 1,000 men and women students staged a demonstration which was not suppressed until just before 3 a.m., when a campus policeman, Buddy Williams, 21, was severely cut on the face by a soft drink bottle thrown from the mob.

Police Chief W. D. Joiner reported the rioters were rallied by telephone calls to dormitories.

A similar "we want beer" riot involving 600 students was staged last Wednesday but only one arrest was made then.

Tear gas was used to disperse rioters this morning after women students were warned it would be employed and were advised to go to their dormitories. The girls' quarters were locked, guarded and darkened after the coeds got inside. There had been indications party raids would be attempted.

Flaming Car Crash Claims Five Lives

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — A collision on Ohio Rt. 4 about 1 1/2 miles south of Middletown Sunday resulted in a flaming wreck that left five persons dead and two injured, the Ohio Highway Patrol said.

Officers said a southbound car driven by James O. Troutman, 30, of Hamilton, Ohio, attempted to turn left off the highway and was struck broadside by another car. The Troutman car burst into flames, they said. Troutman and a passenger, William E. Fanney, Hamilton, were killed.

Three occupants of the other car also were killed.

Belgian Plane Crash Brings Death To 65

Four Passengers Escape Before Big Airliner Explodes

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — A Belgian airliner coming in for an emergency landing with a bad engine smashed through a building at Casablanca's Cazes Airport Sunday and exploded in a tower of flame. Sixty-five persons, including at least eight children, perished.

Four passengers escaped by plunging through a hatchway seconds before the Sabena Airlines four-engine DC6B blew up.

Forty-one of the dead passengers were Belgians, most of them returning to the Belgian Congo after vacations in their homeland and visits to the World Fair in Brussels. The others were seven Britons, five Portuguese, one Dutch, one German and one Swiss. A British family of five and a Belgian family of five perished together.

The plane took off from Brussels with 54 passengers and nine Belgian crewmen. Six more passengers boarded the craft at Lisbon. The plane was bound for Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo. Sabena's manifest listed no Americans aboard.

After leaving Lisbon the pilot radioed that one of his engines was vibrating and that he was stopping at Casablanca for repairs. He jettisoned some of his gasoline just before reaching Casablanca. With firemen and ambulances waiting along the runway, the plane nosed down. But its approach was bad. Eyewitnesses said the pilot gunned the engines to pull up but the plane did not respond.

The airliner missed the runway, plowed through a military installations building, hurtled 50 yards and came to a stop against another airport structure.

Immediately the passenger door burst open and four passengers leaped out. Then the plane exploded.

Four Boys Die In Flash Fire

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Four little boys trapped in an upstairs bedroom died in a sudden, unexpected fire which swept through their home Saturday night while the parents were visiting a neighbor.

A fifth youngster in a downstairs back room was saved after being seriously burned and overcome by smoke.

Killed in the short-lived blaze were David Headley, 10, and his younger brothers, Danny, 6; Randy, 5, and Ricky, 4. Seriously burned was Terry Lee, 1.

They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Headley, a couple in their early 30s.

The Headleys had seen some friends to the door shortly after 10 p.m. when a neighbor, Paul Bacher, hailed them with an invitation to "come on over for a while."

Mrs. Headley returned to the front room, switched off the television set and made a final check of the five children, then followed her husband, a transit system mechanic, to the Bacher residence.

At 10:55 as the Headleys were leaving the Bacher residence, Mrs. Headley noticed a bright glow in the front room of their house. Before she and her husband could reach the home, the windows collapsed and fire roared out and upward, blocking the entrance.

Vending Machine Takes, Changes Paper Money

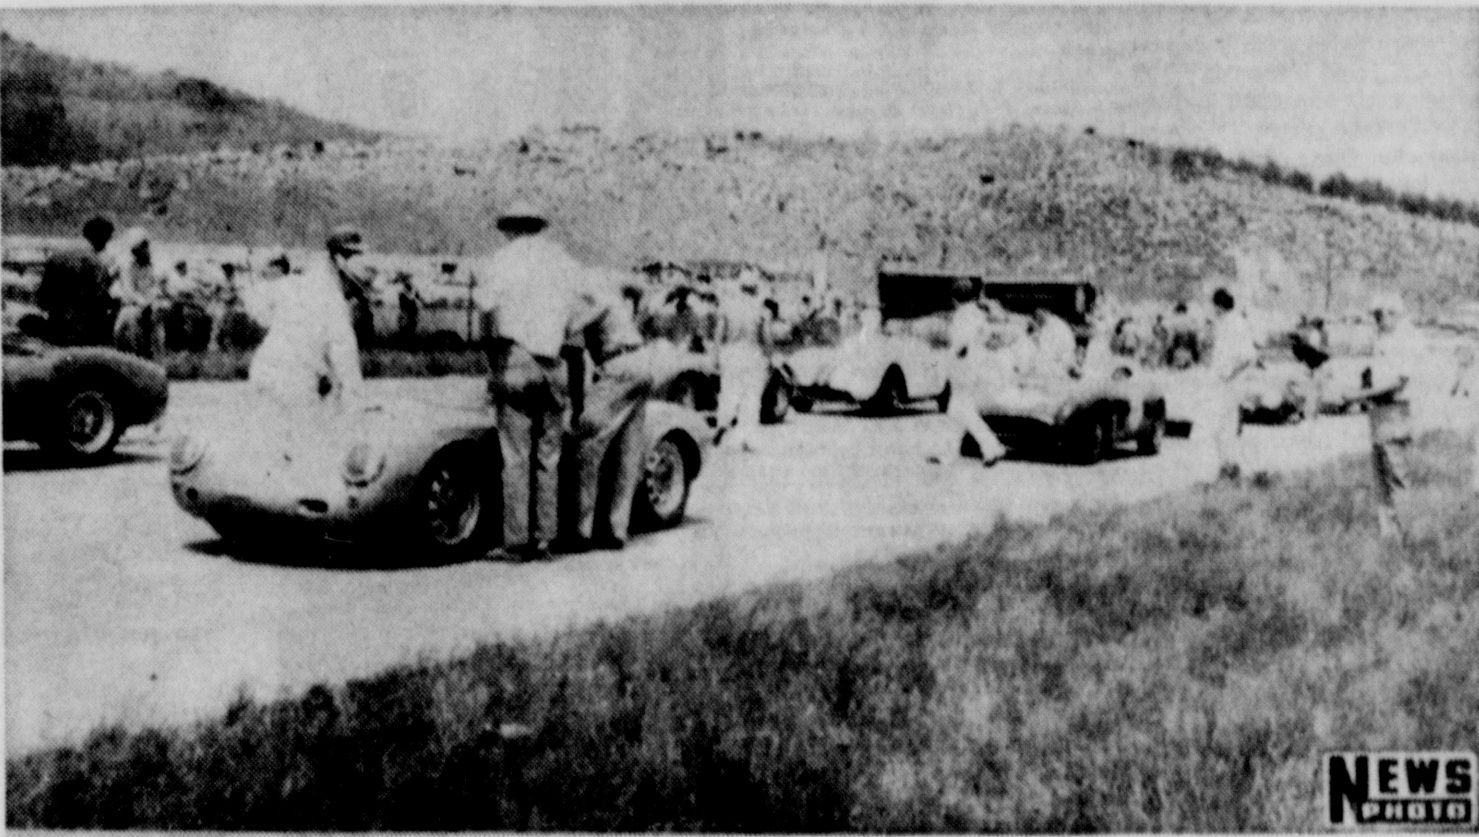

NEW YORK (AP) — Necessity may be the mother of invention but surely it must have been inflation alone that foiled the latest wonder of scientific gadgetry.

It's a vending machine that takes paper money.

"A major breakthrough in automatic vending," says its inventor, William A. Patzer. "In the next three to five years automatic vending will be bigger than the automobile business."

Patzer, head of a Chicago firm that makes vending gadgets, came to New York the other day to demonstrate his bill changing machines.

How does the machine work? Patzer won't say. The patent is pending, but the machine is expected to be in production in September. Then the secret will be out.

Govs. Stratton, Leader Oppose General Tax Cut

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Govs. William G. Stratton of Illinois and George M. Leader of Pennsylvania kicked off Governors' Conference discussions Sunday with vigorous opposition to any general federal tax cuts.

Stratton, a Republican and the conference chairman, told reporters he thinks the industrial states will have to take "drastic measures" if the economy does not take a turn for the better within 30 days. But he said he believes a general U.S. tax cut would be "folly" at this point.

Leader, a Democrat who is running for his party's senatorial nomination, said he "can't comprehend" how there could be a tax reduction with world and domestic conditions as they are.

"I am frankly not quite sure how you bring about a tax cut at this time in history when the Russians have just put up a ton-and-a-half Sputnik, when we have five million people out of work, when we need hospitals and highways," Leader said.

Despite the indication by southern governors they will seek some action on the school integration problem at this 50th annual session, Stratton barred official talk about any phase of the Little Rock, Ar., controversy.

Gov. Leroy Collins, Florida Democrat, has said he plans to talk with other governors about his proposal to set up federal-state commissions to deal with the school segregation problem.

Ives Predicts Labor Reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-NY) said Sunday night that if Congress can skip partisan politics chances are good for approval of the first major labor reform legislation since the 1947 Taft-Hartley Act.

Ives, senior Republican on the Senate Rackets Investigating committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), said responsible union leaders are offering now to cooperate on "reasonable labor legislation" for the first time in a decade.

Such legislation, he said in a radio broadcast for New York State stations, would "stop shenanigans in this field" exposed by the extended Senate hearings.

"Decent labor leaders, men like George Meany (AFL-CIO president), have been hard at work for some time at the task of cleansing labor's house," Ives said. "They have made progress. But they need the federal government's help in this effort."

Fire Aboard Danish Freighter Put Out

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Firefighters Sunday extinguished the fire aboard the Danish freighter Olivia-Winther, whose master put up a determined fight for his ship.

Two tugboats towed the ship to Mobile Harbor.

The Olivia-Winther caught fire Saturday about 60 miles southeast of here in the Gulf of Mexico while returning to the United States from South America.

The American tanker Esso Al-lentown rescued the crew. Capt. V. Nielsen and two crewmen remained on the ship to fight the fire.

60 Reported Killed In Tripoli Fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Furious fighting raged Sunday in Tripoli, north Lebanese port city where rioters burned a U.S. library nine days ago. At least 60 persons were reported killed.

It was the bloodiest scrap of the internal warfare that has been shaking this tiny east Mediterranean republic. Supporters and foes of pro-Western President Camille Chamoun have engaged in daily clashes. Chamoun has blamed interference from the United Arab Republic and U.A.R. President Nasser for the troubles.

The new fighting began Saturday. Security forces stormed through the narrow streets late in the day in a bid to regain control, and managed to get the shooting halted.

Telephoned reports from Tripoli said Rachid Karami, a top-ranking opposition leader in the north, ordered his forces to quit fighting when their casualties began to mount.

The security forces have controlled Tripoli's new city throughout the strife. They were reported ready to move into the old town to extend their control.

There were unconfirmed reports Karami and Mohammed Hamze, another opposition leader in the north, had been captured. Opposition sources in Beirut later said it might be true.

The capture would be a major victory for Chamoun. It might even weaken the opposition to a point where they would be forced to end the battling in which an estimated 150 to 200 persons have been reported killed in pitched battles, bomb throwing, sniping and rioting.

No official casualty figures were available.

Beirut and most other cities were quiet Sunday. Disturbances were reported in Sidon, south Lebanon, and there were reports of fighting in the mountainous Chouf district in central Lebanon.

Till-Tapper Too Good A Teacher

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — The last time Thomas C. Shuck, 30, was in jail for till-tapping he showed police in a training movie how to tap a till.

The main thing, he emphasized, is to get the money when the cashier is not looking. But equally important is the getaway car parked nearby with the front wheels turned away from the curb.

Patrolman George Cruickshank took note of that.

He saw a car parked with its front wheels away from the curb near a restaurant. Shuck was just getting out. Two companions remained in the car. They saw Cruickshank and sped away.

Shuck ducked into the restaurant. Cruickshank arrested him on general principles. Waitress Lucille Moore, 27, handed the patrolman 18 one dollar bills she said she saw Shuck toss into a telephone booth.

They came from the cash register of a nearby stationary store, Cruickshank said.

Letters Of Praise Shower Nixons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nixon and his wife are being showered with telegrams and mail praising them for courage, dignity and patience during their recent South American tour.

Nixon's desks in the Senate Office Building are jammed with communications from friends and citizens outraged at the spitting, jeering mobs the goodwill emissaries encountered in Venezuela and Puer.

Scores of the letters came from South America, apologizing for the conduct of minority groups.

Uneasy Britons Blame U.S. For Mideast Crisis

LONDON (AP) — Growing alarm was evident in Britain Sunday that the West is heading for another severe setback in the Middle East. And the Americans, to a large extent, are being blamed.

An outcry has come from influential politicians and newspaper editors of all political hues — left to right — for what they call a unified policy and realistic approach to rising Arab nationalism.

The crisis confronting France at home and in Algeria and the Lebanon riots have only brought out in the open again a worry long nagging diplomatic quarters in this capital.

Lord Salisbury, 64, elder statesman of the British Conservative Party, delivered a warning in the House of Lords last week that "slowly but surely the balance of power is being swung against the West."

Salisbury said it was time the Western nations know what American foreign policy was — especially in the Middle East.

"After all, the United States today occupies almost the same position in the western bloc as Russia does in the eastern bloc."

Lord Salisbury's views carry strong weight among a Tory bloc that supports the government of Prime Minister Macmillan. Salisbury favors a firm and tough British foreign policy. He supported the Suez invasion and walked out of Macmillan's cabinet after Britain released Archbishop Makarios from exile in the Cyprus dispute.

Aneurin Bevan, foreign affairs spokesman for Britain's Labor Party, said the West must learn to deal with the new forces of Arab nationalism.

He prepared murder charges against Mrs. Thelma Crellie, 34, in the slayings of Cecil Ann Crellie, 11, and Sandra Lucinda Crellie, 10. Both were shot in the temple. Their sister, Mary Catherine, 5, who was asleep in another room escaped.

The shootings occurred at the farm home of the mother's father, L. C. Johnkenkin, who heard the two shots and took the pistol from his daughter, Wilburn said.

Officers found in a Bible a 34-page letter Mrs. Crellie had written detailing financial and family troubles.

Wilburn said Mrs. Crellie calmly gave this account in a formal statement to officers at the Rusk County Jail.

She had been preparing the 34-page letter for some time. She was brewing coffee for breakfast when she suddenly decided to get the revolver and go into the girls' room because she decided they would be better off dead.

She also told Wilburn that her only regret was that her father took the gun away from her before she could kill herself.

Elmer Davis, 68, Veteran News Commentator, Dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elmer Davis, news commentator whose Midwestern twang was familiar for years to millions of radio listeners, died Sunday. He was 68.

Davis left radio work at the start of World War II to become chief of the government's wartime Office of War Information.

He died at George Washington University Hospital from a stroke suffered two months ago. The white-haired native of Aurora, Ind., had not been very active since 1953, when he suffered a heart attack.

A longtime political liberal, he was one of the 150 founders of the Americans for Democratic Action in 1947.

In addition to his news analysis work, Davis was a short story writer, novelist and essayist.

He began his radio work in 1939 with the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Divorcee Kills Two Children

HENDERSON, Tex. (AP) — A divorced mother, brooding over family troubles, shot her two young girls to death as they slept early Sunday, Dist. Atty. H. H. Wilburn said.

He prepared murder charges against Mrs. Thelma Crellie, 34, in the slayings of Cecil Ann Crellie, 11, and Sandra Lucinda Crellie, 10. Both were shot in the temple. Their sister, Mary Catherine, 5, who was asleep in another room escaped.

Reds Inspired Nixon Attacks, Hoover Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover said Sunday the attacks on Vice President Nixon in Latin America definitely were inspired by communists who, he said, are "but a very small minority" in those countries.

"There has been a concerted effort throughout the vice president's trip to embarrass him," the FBI director added.

Hoover said the fact that small groups of radicals could create such incidents "should be a lesson" to guard against communism.

Set For Hour Of De Gaulle's News Parley

Government Calls Out Police Reserves To Maintain Order

PARIS, (Monday) (AP) — A giant strike threatened Paris Sunday with the appearance of Gen. Charles De Gaulle for a news conference that may spell out his terms for taking powers.

The strike call was issued by the communist-led General Confederation of Labor.

It asked all its member and other workers in the Seine Department (Paris region) to stage a sitdown strike at 3 p.m., the hour of De Gaulle's news conference, and be ready to reply en masse "to any attempt at a fascist demonstration."

Premier Pierre Pflimlin's government, seeking to suppress all demonstrations, was caught in the middle.

Hundreds of mobilized police reserves were called out to strengthen the government's hand in dealing with the political turmoil sweeping the nation. Thousands will be on guard in Paris streets throughout the day.

Unity Call In Algeria

Across the Mediterranean, Gaudist leader Jacques Soustelle told a cheering, flag-waving throng in Algiers Sunday to fall in with the army to save France. A rightist military regime has taken over the Algerian government.

Jules Moch, stern new interior minister, denounced the committees of public safety established in Algeria.

"Irresponsible committees have usurped public power," Moch said in a radio speech to the nation. "Some persons have set themselves up against the nation's unity and against the republic... The fate of the republic is at stake."

Moch, who gives the orders to the thousands of reinforced police, called for the strict execution of all directives.

Information Minister Albert Gazier officially notified all newspaper publishers and the heads of French and foreign news agencies that all news is subject to censorship under the new emergency powers bill, though that provision has not yet been invoked.

"We want to avoid censorship," Gazier said, proposing that all dispatches be written circumspectly under self-censorship. Otherwise, he said, "we will be obliged to impose censorship on you."

Asked whether he would censor any of the statements made by De Gaulle, the minister said he would make no ruling on that in advance. In effect, he reported, it depends on what the general says.

Guards around De Gaulle's home 150 miles east of Paris were heavily reinforced. Police questioned all persons passing or approaching the house of the lanky rightist hero, but their purpose appeared mainly to prevent any demonstrations in violation of the government's ban on all gatherings.

Premier Pierre Pflimlin, fighting for the government's political life, spent a busy day in conferences with President Rene Coty, and with three of the right-of-center members of his Cabinet. There were unconfirmed rumors that these three might pull out of the government, endangering its parliamentary majority.

Hail Causes Damage In Boonsboro Area

BOONSBORO, Md. (AP) — Hailstones the size of golf balls fell on the Sharpsburg-Boonsboro area Sunday night and knocked down utility wires, shattered windows and caused other damage.

State Police said the roof of a barn on the Mapleville-Boonsboro Road was torn off in the storm, which struck about 7 p. m.

Windows in a number of homes in the Boonsboro area were shattered.

The hail also damaged a partially completed home of State Trooper Clyde Tucker in the Boonsboro section.

ADA Favors China Recognition Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Americans for Democratic Action voted nearly 2-1 Sunday for an immediate start on negotiations looking toward U.S. recognition of Communist China.

The convention-closing action came after a floor battle that split the ADA leadership even though the resolution was modified before passage on a standing vote.

The exact vote on final passage was not announced, but leaders estimated it was almost 2-1.

Campaign Tactics Of Two Candidates Under Fire

BALTIMORE — Two candidates for election to the Maryland legislature have been charged in separate actions with circulating illegal campaign material.

State Senator George W. Della (D-Balto 6th) has been directed to answer by Monday a complaint that he distributed ballots "fraudulently marked 'Official Democratic Ballot'." His political agent, Leroy Frederick, is a co-defendant.

Their attorney, Robert F. Skutch Jr., denied in a demurrer that the ballots are fraudulent and contended an entity known as "The Democratic Party" does not exist. Judge James K. Cullen in Circuit Court overruled the demurrer Saturday and gave the defendants until Monday morning to file an answer.

The complaint was brought by M. Jack Marshall, another Sixth District candidate for the State Senate. He charged, through his attorney, Hyman A. Pressman, that the ballots, which back the "harmony" slate, were intended to "mislead the voters" into believing they were the official publication of the Democratic Party.

In another action, Anthony P. Franco, 35-year-old independent Democratic candidate for the House of Delegates, and two men were held in $1,000 bail each Saturday on charges of conspiracy and circulating campaign literature without the name of an authorized political agent.

Patrolman Paul Bounds said the other two defendants, Albert Gardner, 44, and Wallace S. Alsop, 43, told him they had been hired by Franco to distribute circulars.

Franco at a hearing before Magistrate John Janetzke, denied the charges. His attorney, I. Winston Merger, contended the charges were part of a "political frame-up."

The magistrate said the circulating of campaign material without the signature of an authorized political agent was "a vicious thing to do."

Robbery Suspect Seized In Virginia

MARION, Va. — Thomas Martin Miller, 35, has been arrested here and turned over to FBI agents to face charges of armed robbery in Maryland.

FBI spokesmen said Miller, arrested Saturday night, is wanted in connection with the armed robbery by four men of a tavern in Security, a suburb of Hagerstown, Md., March 30. They said Miller denied any implication in the robbery.

Miller was arrested by Marion Police Chief Walter Boone as he was making a telephone call at a service station near the motel at which he had spent the night.

Bees And Bats Invade Homes

HAGERSTOWN — Mrs. H.E. Kent came home from a Sunday drive and found thousands of uninvited guests swarming throughout her home.

Bees—thousands of them—were in the basement, the first and second floors and on both porches.

Mrs. Kent hurriedly called a man who removes bees free of charge. He was out of town.

Mrs. Kent couldn't remain outdoors, either. It was raining.

A non-professional effort was made to get the bees to leave pending help from professional quarters.

HAGERSTOWN — Police used tennis rackets to swat down and dispatch a band of bats that invaded the Garlock nursing home Sunday.

About seven or eight bats which flew into the place finally were trapped in one room.

There police used their best forehand and backhand strikes to bring them down. Police explained tennis rackets were used because the bats couldn't feel them coming.

Md., Va. Open Potomac Talks

MOUNT VERNON, Va. — Virginia and Maryland representatives will meet at the conference table here Monday to attempt to settle their states' differences over the Potomac River.

It was at Mount Vernon 173 years ago that representatives of the two states drew up the now battered Potomac River Compact under the watchful eye of George Washington.

There have been many such conferences since the 1785 agreement.

Monday's session was suggested by retired Justice Stanley Reed, designated by the U. S. Supreme Court as special master to hear the Virginia-Maryland dispute.

Maryland's legislature in 1957 enacted laws to cancel the compact, required Virginians fishing in the Potomac to obtain Maryland licenses, and put enforcement and control exclusively in Maryland hands.

Virginia objected and asked the Supreme Court to halt Maryland's abrogation of the compact. Virginia contended the compact could be abrogated only by common consent.

Reed proposed the two states try to negotiate an out-of-court settlement. Subsequently, the governor of each state appointed a five-man commission. The two commissions, flanked by advisors and experts, will hold their first meeting at 9:30 a. m. (EST) Monday.

Bar May Reconsider Bid To Menshikov

BALTIMORE — An invitation extended to the Soviet ambassador to speak in Baltimore may be reconsidered when the Bar Assn. of Baltimore City meets in special session, probably May 26.

Mikhail A. Menshikov has been invited to speak at the bar's annual meeting June 10.

However, Attorney Hyman A. Pressman asked for a special meeting to reconsider the invitation and presented a petition bearing the names of 45 bar association members. The group's bylaws require only 10 members to ask for a special meeting.

Pressman says the association would be offering the Russian ambassador a sounding board to spread Communist propaganda and he has said some members of the protesting group would embarrass the diplomat if he comes here to speak.

Pressman's group has asked that the special session vote on a resolution directing the executive committee to immediately withdraw the invitation to Menshikov. The association has about 1,000 members.

Garrett School Board Lists Transfers

Promotions Are Announced

OAKLAND—Dr. Ralph Calandrella of Kitzmiller has been elected president of the Garrett County School Board, with Maurice Brookhart, vice-president and George Edwards, associate member. The board met recently and approved a number of appointments and transfers for the school term beginning in September.

Francis E. Harris is to be transferred from the principalship at Loch Lynn to become principal at the Route 40 School. Miss Rachel Hughes and Mrs. Elizabeth Workman are transferred to Route 40 School from Grantsville.

Mrs. Thelma Hanlin is promoted to principal of Loch Lynn School.

Mrs. Mary Riggs is transferred from North Glade School to Loch Lynn School.

Ralph Buckel is transferred as principal of Bittering to principal at North Glade.

John Keister is appointed instructor of English and Social Studies at Northern High School. Wayne Johnson is appointed English and Social Studies teacher at Southern High School.

The board also took action to reduce the Bittering School to a one-room school for primary children only. Parents of the other children at Bittering will be given the choice of sending their youngsters to either Accident, Grantsville or North Glade. Parents with children in the primary grades may also elect to send their young children along with the older ones in the upper grades to Grantsville, Accident or North Glade if they wish.

Among resignations of teachers accepted by the board are, Mrs. Kathleen Layman from Route 40 School; Miss Ethel Hesser from the Accident School; Miss Josephine King from the Center Street School; and Miss June Mowbray and Lloyd Winters from the Grantsville School.

The board made an inspection trip to the Annex Building and to the Swan Meadow school and reported both projects progressing nicely. The board hopes the annex job will be completed in June, to house the Board of Education offices.

The board also reviewed proposed plans for a band room at Southern High School. Bids are being sought on this project.

Swimming Pool Project Work Is Progressing

LONA CONING — Two days of work over the weekend by several score volunteers, aided by two bulldozers, power saws and hand tools, "put quite a hole" in the project of cleaning up the old Charles Town reservoir area for a community swimming pool.

Calvin James, secretary, said last night that an area where people have been dumping refuse was cleaned out and the garbage dump was covered with fill. More silt was removed from the basin, and a large quantity of brush was burned.

Volunteers plan to return to the site this evening at 6 o'clock, and again try to get more done. Some time this week, it is hoped the task of restoring the stone wall of the reservoir can be started, James said.

Within the past few days, some of the individuals who are aspiring to office have donated a total of $45 and 51 bags of cement to the project. A number of other organizations and individuals have also promised money and materials as needed. Mr. James noted. The over-all plan calls for as much volunteer work as can be mustered, to be followed by solicitation of clubs, organizations and others for funds to buy what cannot be obtained voluntarily. Mr. James said the costs of the whole job are being kept at a minimum.

Any persons interested in working on the project will be welcome this evening, and those participating are asked to bring shovels, picks, axes, hoes, etc., and if possible, should wear boots.

Let's Reduce This Self-Defeating Tax

If and when the time comes for reduction of federal taxes, a hard look should be taken at the capital gains levies. One excellent reason, according to many experts, is that a materially reduced capital gains tax would result in much larger revenue than the government now obtains from this source.

Countless millions are invested in land and other substantial forms of property savings, and the investment gives the owner a standing alternative of holding title for an indefinite period, or of selling. Often, when the owner begins to figure what he would have to pay in capital gains tax, he decides not to sell.

In the case of elderly persons who justifiably regard real estate holdings as a form of savings, this is an especially touchy situation. The owners in many if not most cases have put much work and improvement into the property, and the work and improvement constitute savings which, they justifiably believe, ought to be kept intact against the time when they may be helpless and dependent upon all possible reserves.

To a large and important extent such cumulative outlay of money and labor is not deductible in calculating federal tax liabilities. This type of confiscation of honest earnings is indefensible.

When the government steps in and appropriates a considerable portion of the value of the property—including improvements—in case of sale, they become victims of a double loss, that of inflation which subtracts from their dollars, and that of outright expropriation.

The overall result of the present high capital gains levy is to cause undue stagnation in the real estate market.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Inefficient Producer

Walter C. Furst writes me that he cannot understand "why you propose that the American consumer should subsidize the inefficient American producer. Would it not be in the common interest if we permit these inefficient producers to go out of business and let the excess labor be hired by the more efficient producers who can compete on world markets?"

This is an extremely interesting idea because Mr. Furst does not recognize why the American producer cannot compete price-wise with West German, Japanese or Soviet-sphere products in world markets. After all, there was a period when American producers were the most efficient in the world and during two wars, it was the American producer who set a standard of production unequalled in the history of the world. It was the American mill and factory that won World Wars I and II.

It is now evident that the American producer has outpriced himself in world markets and has therefore become non-competitive in many fields, even in the American market. To understand this, it is necessary to discover the causes of this price factor. Walter Reuther has recognized this problem in the automobile industry and has made several proposals which do not seem economically feasible.

The principal cause is high wages which, in their relationship to price, become cumulative from the labor that goes into the gathering of raw materials in mine and farm to the painting of the finished automobile. About 25 per cent of the American labor force is affected directly or indirectly by this one industry and the largest item in its budget is wages and benefits.

Wages reflect not only the American high standard of living but also the inflationary trend which has been continuous since the beginning of the Korean War. Those commodities which are a product of automatic or even semi-automatic machinery, requiring only the time of the worker but no particular skills, can be produced in one country as well as another, if that country has access to the raw materials or the partially manufactured materials required to make them.

A stamping machine can be worked by a coolie as well as by a high school graduate, and actually that is happening all over the world, bringing on an industrial revolution in many so-called backward countries.

What Mr. Furst suggests by implication is that the lower standard of living countries are more efficient than the higher standard of living countries because they can produce identical items at lower costs.

A second factor in this situation is taxation which is an item of cost. All forms of taxation, individual and corporate, come out of earnings and so are a factor in wages and salaries. Therefore, countries where lower taxes need to be paid may have a price advantage over countries where higher wages are paid. This particularly gives an advantage to those countries which have enjoyed American economic or military aid, thus relieving the producing personnel of those countries of part of the cost of operations and by that means putting them in a better position than their American competitors who have to pay high wages and high taxes.

The third factor in efficiency is the relationship of depreciation reserves to the value of currency of a country. It is absolutely impossible for old plant and equipment to produce as efficiently as new plant and equipment. In many instances, European, Asian and South American plant and equipment are, in effect, gifts from the United States and are more modern than the competing American plant and equipment. In a word, we cut our own throats competitively in world markets.

Replacements are a question of taxation. When a depreciation reserve requires 1939 costs to pay for 1958 costs, the penalty upon the American producer is about two and one-half times and therefore makes him non-competitive, particularly with those countries that benefited by our generosity, as, for instance, Soviet Russia did to the tune of $11,000,000,000, through Lend-Lease.

What Mr. Furst is thinking about is the classical free market which is the ideal of all capitalistic philosophers and which exists nowhere on the face of the Earth today. This might have been a better world if the free market did operate, but that is impossible in an era in which socialism, in one form or another, prevails in so many countries.

'Image' Of Eisenhower At Last Begins To Fade

By Joseph Alsop

CHICAGO, ILL.

Dwight D. Eisenhower seems to be losing his greatest asset. The famous "father image" of the President whom all must like, whom all can trust, is at last beginning to fade pretty badly.

This is the conclusion that has to be drawn, at any rate, from two days of intensive doorbell-ringing that this reporter recently completed in this city's sprawling industrial neighborhood.

There was a curious sameness in the places polled. Green and Ashland and Center Streets and Calumet Avenue in Harvey, Ill., and East 36th Avenue in Gary, Ind., only differ from each other in the dates when development began. But even in the older streets, there are some new houses. And all are inhabited by the same sort of people—industrial workers in the more skilled and highly paid groups and prosperous mechanics and construction workers, with a sprinkling of railroaders, small business men and retired people.

These places were chosen by Lou Harris, the professional pollster who joined in the doorbell-ringing, because they were the sort of places where the President made very heavy inroads among the normally Democratic voters in 1952 and 1956. And indeed, of the 65 persons who were polled, no less than 38 voted for Eisenhower in 1956, while only 21 cast their ballots for Adlai Stevenson.

Among those who had voted therefore, the preponderance of Eisenhower ballots had been really heavy. The contrast was sharp with the way the same people were now inclined to vote in the oncoming Congressional election. About one in five really did not have the vaguest idea, but among the rest some 28 were at least leaning rather heavily in the Democratic direction, while only twenty were leaning Republican.

Televising a heart operation brought down on the British Broadcasting corporation the wrath of the English medical profession. In an editorial titled "Disease Education by B.B.C." on February 15, the British Medical Journal says that dramatizing disease instead of health was looking backward instead of forward. In addition, the editors thought it "demeaning for doctors and nurses to appear as mummies to provide entertainment for the British public."

Since then, every issue of this journal has carried letters from the articulate English medics, expressing their opinion of the telecast. The majority condemned the program and thought it too gory for public consumption. Shortly after the show ended, a family doctor received a call from a woman saying her husband had fainted. When the physician arrived the man apologized and explained: "I can't stand blood and that. I was watching television and don't remember anything more."

A few minutes after the program was over man appeared in the emergency room of a hospital with a cut over his forehead. He had fainted while watching TV and struck his skull when he fell off a chair. A woman passed out and fell face first into a blazing fireplace. Another individual "fainted, split his scalp, and was knocked out for some time." His physician kept him in the hospital for 24 hours and remarked, "This man probably won't watch any more programs in that series."

Not all British physicians condemned the telecast. One letter stated that the human mind readily adapts to new ideas from sacks to Sputniks and points out that today's precedent is tomorrow's routine. Mike Jacobs never had it but Tex Rickard did. Mike was as cagey as a pet shop.

The man I worked for almost forty years had it. Nobody but William Randolph Hearst would feed a temperamental stable of Brisbane, Goddards, Carvalhos, Tads, Winsor McCays, Tom Powers, Runyons, Baers and others too numerous to be decimal pointed.

Ziegfeld had it but not with his own moola. In baseball Tom Yawkey is still feeding that elephant without having copped a pennant.

Many semesters ago we defined one type of intellect as the circus mind. That's the willingness to feed an elephant all winter to exhibit it in the Spring.

Citizens are sparse and none between who possess the circus mind. You go overboard with a grindstone under each arm and come up with a freshly honed axe.

Barnum naturally fed 'em in the winter and harvested 'em in the summer. Diamond Jim Brady let you build the better mouse trap while he raised the biggest cat.

Televising a heart operation brought down on the British Broadcasting corporation the wrath of the English medical profession. In an editorial titled "Disease Education by B.B.C." on February 15, the British Medical Journal says that dramatizing disease instead of health was looking backward instead of forward. In addition, the editors thought it "demeaning for doctors and nurses to appear as mummies to provide entertainment for the British public."

Since then, every issue of this journal has carried letters from the articulate English medics, expressing their opinion of the telecast. The majority condemned the program and thought it too gory for public consumption. Shortly after the show ended, a family doctor received a call from a woman saying her husband had fainted. When the physician arrived the man apologized and explained: "I can't stand blood and that. I was watching television and don't remember anything more."

A few minutes after the program was over man appeared in the emergency room of a hospital with a cut over his forehead. He had fainted while watching TV and struck his skull when he fell off a chair. A woman passed out and fell face first into a blazing fireplace. Another individual "fainted, split his scalp, and was knocked out for some time." His physician kept him in the hospital for 24 hours and remarked, "This man probably won't watch any more programs in that series."

Not all British physicians condemned the telecast. One letter stated that the human mind readily adapts to new ideas from sacks to Sputniks and points out that today's precedent is tomorrow's routine. Other physicians mentioned the elementary fact that a flip of the switch is all that is necessary for the squeamish.

Embassy Phone Call Caused Ike To Rush Troops To Caribbean

By Jack Anderson

(Editor's note—Drew Pearson is now reporting on what progress Moscow may have made among our NATO allies. While he is abroad, the Washington end of the column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON—With Congress in an uproar over the dispatch of American troops to the Caribbean, the dramatic story can now be told of the backstage developments that led to the order.

During the anti-Nixon outbreak in Venezuela, American Ambassador Ed Sparks got on the overseas telephone to President Eisenhower. Sparks explained that the Venezuelan police had been disorganized after the overthrow of dictator Perez Jimenez last January. For this reason, he said, the authorities were having trouble controlling the mob.

He reported tersely that the Embassy was under "virtual siege," then blurted: "I don't know how long we can hold out!"

About this point, the telephone connection was mysteriously broken off for a few minutes. (The State Department is now quietly investigating whether Venezuelan Government monitors were listening in on Ike's conversation and may have temporarily cut it off.)

The President was so alarmed over Spark's report that he phoned Secretary of Defense McElroy and ordered troops rushed to the Caribbean at once. The Secretary called in the Joint Chiefs of Staff and transmitted the Presidential decree.

For several minutes, the Joint Chiefs argued over which service should be sent to the Vice President's rescue. It was finally agreed that Army paratroopers would be flown to the Caribbean in Air Force planes.

However, Adm. Arleigh Burke, the Navy chief, slipped out of the meeting for 15 minutes and ordered two squadrons of Marines flown to the trouble zone. He returned to the meeting and blandly informed the other chiefs that the Marines had scheduled maneuvers in the Caribbean anyway.

Despite the temporary confusion, the first paratroopers were winging their way to the trouble area within two hours after the Pentagon received President Eisenhower's order.

Note—The Secret Service took special measures to guard Vice President Nixon's two daughters, Patricia and Julie, while their parents were braving mobs in South America. Tipped off that Puerto Rican fanatics helped stir up the mobs, the Secret Service feared fanatics in this country might try to harm the girls in their anti-Nixon zeal. These are the same Puerto Rican nationalists who tried to assassinate President Truman in 1950 and shot up the House of Representatives in 1954.

Horse-Auto Odds

Silky Sullivan, the horse that got stuck in the mud at the Kentucky Derby, and Tim Tam, the winner, were involved in a different kind of pari-mutuel the other day during a discussion of auto sales by the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee.

Scholarly Sen. Paul Douglas, Illinois Democrat, proposed a plan whereby "six will get you sixteen." He maintained that a 6 per cent reduction in auto prices, coupled with an excise tax cut, would increase auto sales by 16 per cent.

"This 'sixteen for six' is better than the two-to-one odds on Tim Tam and the eight-to-five on Silky, or sulky, Sullivan in the Derby," Douglas suggested brightly. "In case there are any horse betters around here, Mr. Chairman, maybe you would like me to insert the Derby odds in the record, showing the quotations on Tim Tam and Silky."

"I haven't had any personal experience as to horse racing but I admire the sport," drawled Chairman Estes Kefauver, Tennessee Democrat. "But if the automobile companies do not take advantage of this opportunity, then they are not as optimistic as the 118,000 people who attended the Derby."

Douglas did not insist on printing the racing odds in the hearing transcript, explaining with a deferential bow to Kefauver: "I know Tennessee is more puritanical in such matters than Kentucky."

Rival Investigations

At rival hearings, one Congressional committee has been investigating and another defending the Military Air Transport Service which hauls servicemen and Congressmen around the world at the taxpayers' expense.

Congressman Chet Holifield, natty California Democrat, started the backstage battle by ordering his House Appropriations subcommittee to investigate why MATS hasn't turned more of its free passenger business over to commercial airlines.

Congressman Mendel Rivers, long-haired South Carolina Democrat, promptly responded by calling his Armed Services subcommittee into session to defend the military airline.

Both Congressmen have been free passengers, themselves, on MATS.

Reporting behind closed doors on the results of his investigation Holifield reminded the Appropriations subcommittee that it had called on MATS last year to turn over 40 per cent of its passenger business and 20 per cent of its cargo to commercial lines. He charged that the Air Force had "stubbornly and willfully" ignored the committee's directives.

"It is incumbent upon the Congress," he declared, "to take some action to break through the shell of indifference in the Pentagon to the problems of the civil air carriers."

He charged that "MATS badly needs some study and attention by the Secretary of Defense. . . . Those who are supposed to give policy direction to MATS seem to be taking direction from MATS." Holifield's committee will issue a critical report in a few weeks, then Rivers' committee will rush out a friendly report in rebuttal.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The man who comes to my house every Sunday is John Dundas. He arrives in a cab and gets out with a can of beer in each hand. He is fairly tall, gray, as fat as the back end of a stuffed goose, a meticulous dresser. He has a small British mustache and a horse voice. We have been friends for 36 years.

His nickname is Chief. Everybody calls him that, although no one ever found out what of. He works in the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Terminal in Hoboken and, like most railroaders, he is bucking for a pension. I know this man as I know the back of my hand. Better. I know his virtues, his weaknesses, his joys, and I know the inner sorrows seldom mentioned. He's the very best friend any man could have.

We have done all of the wrong things together, and some of the right ones. When we were kids, and I was out late, he lied to my mother for me. She knew the lie, and pretended to believe it. She would run her tongue around the outside of her teeth and nod. "Yes," she would say. "All right, Chief. I believe you." That made two lies.

In 1930, he was the best man at my wedding and the only line he uttered was one of dripping sarcasm as we came out of the seclusion to walk toward the altar. "This," he whispered, "is not a horse race." In the early years, he was the only one Elinor and I trusted to referee our battles.

He should have become a motion picture director. He directed all the dramatic shows at The Lyceum and he was always in love with the theatre—the Barrymores, the Cohans, Ziegfeld, George White, Ernst Lubitsch, the Hammersteins. He had a deep reverence for good sets, for color, for undersaying a line.

Instead of the theatre, he worked in Wall Street and he stumbled along from one easy job to another. It was a cinch for him to get a job because he had good looks, a friendly attitude toward the world, and an Irish sense of humor. He was born with a sharp, dead-panned wit and, under the influence of a few drams of dew, he could transmute a tame party into a hysterical weekend. Chief was the life . . .

The years passed and many attractive women gave him a modest play, but he remained with the three people he loved the most: his mother, his Aunt Mame and his Uncle Willie. They lived in an old-fashioned house with a dark basement, a parlor floor with vaulted ceilings, and a top floor of bedrooms. He was the main support.

He was gay at the parties, but at home he was grim. His mother was stout and she suffered an embarrassment of the heart if she lay flat in bed. So, for a long time, she slept in a big Morris chair. No matter how badly she felt, she had a big smile and a bigger hello for any friend of "John's." When she finally was sent to the hospital, Chief begged the doctor to please leave an order for his mother to remain sitting up.

After he left, someone ordered her into bed. She was afraid of being a nuisance, so she went to bed. And she passed away. That left two. Chief took care of them, especially Uncle Willie because, as he grew older, he was becoming childish. The morning came when Uncle Willie was gone. And now Chief was white-haired and he put his arm around Aunt Mame, a little bird-like woman who always answered the front door bell by bringing her insurance policy and two dollars. He took care of her and, on nights when he could have been out having those delicious highballs, he sat with her because now she was alone.

When Aunt Mame died, Chief stood over the casket looking down and he did not cry. "A great girl," he said to me. "Let's go downstairs and have a smoke." He was fifty years of age, and long before, his career had veered away from the glamour toward the railroad. He worked nights in the mail room.

He left the old house and rented a room. He lives there now. It is as neat as though a woman smoothed the counterpane, dusted the end tables, and stacked the dishes. He is 52. He has no wife. He has no child.

His big thrill is coming down to my house on Sunday afternoon and staying until Tuesday. He follows my 14-year-old Gayle around and she plays her records and tries to teach him how to dance Rock and Roll. Sometimes we go out in the boat together and get a chance to talk. He likes cheese and crackers at midnight and a perspiring can of beer.

Chief is my friend. My oldest friend . . .

Secrets Of Charm

Two Steps To Graceful Footwork

Some women accept weakness of the ankles and feet as something that can't be helped. Others are hardly conscious that they have such faults and struggle along with the handicap of awkward footwork, not realizing how much can be done to establish a firmer footing for a graceful glide-walk. And a firmer, stronger footing it must be, or walking never becomes the easy, rhythmic movement that is so much less tiring as well as so beautiful to watch.

Almost no one is actually born with weak ankles. Ankles are weakened with the bad habit of misplacing weight as you walk, but they strengthen fast when the weight is shifted from the toes and heels to the balls of the feet. Watch it. Don't let yourself take even a few steps without centering your weight properly; do to make quick improvement, and this exercise nightly to tighten control:

Stand shoeless with the feet five inches apart, toes straight ahead. Put your complete weight in the outside borders of your feet, grip the floor with your toes and pull your arches upward. Hold, then relax with the weight still in the same place. Repeat twenty times.

Next, tackle the problem of foot weakness. Increasing shoe discomfort lately may have been telling you how necessary this is, but kick off your shoes to make sure. Sit with your knees crossed and concentrate on the foot that's in the air. See if you can point each toe downward in turn. If some refuse to budge, begin a practice program. Keep it up until the toes are limbered enough to race like fingers over a keyboard. At each session, point each toe in turn ten times, then point the foot downward toward the floor, clench the toes and hold. Now bend the ankle upward, hold and relax. Repeat up - and - down movement five times in each direction.

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE

COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Statement by State Senator SEE

 I have served in both houses of the General Assembly and have had vast experience in the Legislative Halls at Annapolis. For nine years I served as Chairman of the Allegany County Delegation, being chosen for that position by my fellow Delegates. In both the House of Delegates and the State Senate I have been appointed to and have served on all major committees. I have served on committees of the Legislative Council and have personally appeared before that body in the interest of County legislation.
 I shall continue to work for better roads, highways and bridges in Allegany County. During another term I hope to see the completion of the vast highway program with modern bridges at Wiley Ford and Pinto, both of which are presently safety hazards.
 I will continue to urge the development of the recreational potential of our County, just as the State has done in other areas.
 Having been in the forefront of the battle to help Frostburg State Teachers' College, I favor expansion of this institution so that a Liberal Arts, as well as, an educational program will be offered. This will enable the College to graduate high school teachers, in addition to junior high and elementary teachers.
 I am determined that the money cut from the Capital Bond Bill for Allegany County shall be restored. This will enable the Teachers' College to obtain the buildings that they need.
 Through the years I have worked and voted for the budget requests for the Miners' Hospital, including the appropriation for the new addition, and I favor continued State maintenance of this Hospital, which is necessary for the people living in Frostburg and the Georges Creek area.
 I have been and will continue to be a champion of fair labor legislation. Experience shows that labor laws ultimately help everyone.
 Through my efforts, as sponsor of the Bill that set up a Civil Service system for Allegany County employees, 250 families now have security which was lacking previously when County jobs depended on the outcome of elections every four years. This also insures that the County will have dependable and reliable people who are experienced in handling their jobs.
 One of my aims and achievements as a Legislator has been to see that handicapped persons become self-supporting citizens, not depending on charity or selling pencils on street corners. A handicapped person properly placed on a job becomes a tax payer, not a tax burden.
 Last, but not least, I have consistently supported the Veterans' Legislation, including the Bonus Bill and I urge all veterans to check and compare my voting record on veteran legislation.
 I have consistently supported public education, including the increase in teachers' salaries to meet the higher living costs. Teachers, examine and compare my record. I am confident that I can continue to serve the best interests of the people of Allegany County and I believe that my record warrants your continued support.

Del. Hughes Against Sunday Liquor Sales

Clarifies Position On Changing Law

Del. George R. Hughes Jr. said yesterday he wants to make it clear he's opposed to selling alcoholic beverages on Sunday.

He said many people apparently have a wrong impression about his attitude on the question because of a petition submitted to General Assembly candidates by the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Mr. Hughes, who is running for Republican nomination to the State Senate against incumbent Senator Charles M. See, said the questionnaire he received made no reference to extension of selling hours into Sunday morning.

Did Not Mention Sunday Sales

He said the questionnaire asked only whether the candidate favored or opposed "liberalization of the existing liquor laws for Allegany County, and in particular the extension of hours for selling." No mention of Sunday sales was made.

Mr. Hughes said he replied in a letter to the Ministerial Association May 8 that he could not complete the questionnaire because "I would be binding myself in all events to one side of an issue before an opportunity has been given allowing advocates on both sides to state their views and their reasons therefor."

He also told the ministers that the right of citizens to petition their representatives "would be most hollow if those representatives have already committed themselves in advance of such a hearing."

His letter added:

"I have been advised by a member of your organization that my opponent had committed himself even before I received your letter and questionnaire, and that one of his advisors is urging your association to push this matter. However, I doubt that my opponent's commitment disclosed that he stated during the 1957 session of the Legislature he would support a bill liberalizing the liquor laws in Allegany County. While I certainly acknowledge my opponent's right to commit himself without allowing all citizens an opportunity to present their views, I challenge the consistency of his declared present position and his position in 1957 on the same subject."

"I trust this entire matter is not being motivated by a desire to use the Cumberland Ministerial Association for political purposes."

Says Position Misunderstood

Mr. Hughes declared yesterday that he received on Friday a post card which was unsigned, but presumably sent by the Ministerial Association. The card said:

"The Cumberland Ministerial Association is concerned with the movement to extend the hours for the selling of liquor into Sunday morning. Candidates for the Maryland General Assembly have been polled as to their views concerning the extension of hours for selling. The following candidates have expressed themselves as being opposed to any extension: (list of names). The following replied but did not commit themselves: (list of names). One unsigned opinion was returned. The remaining candidates did not reply."

Mr. Hughes was listed as one of those replying but not committing themselves.

In a statement yesterday, he said:

"Many people who received identical postal cards have, as a result of the information set forth above, asked why I would not commit myself on the question of extending the hours for selling liquor into Sunday morning. They, and possibly many others, are of the impression that selling liquor on Sunday was one of the questions submitted to candidates."

"While I am certain that the Cumberland Ministerial Association did not intentionally wish to convey this impression, still it is completely in error, and fairness dictates that each candidate's position on this question as well as his general fitness to hold public office be judged on correct rather than incorrect impressions."

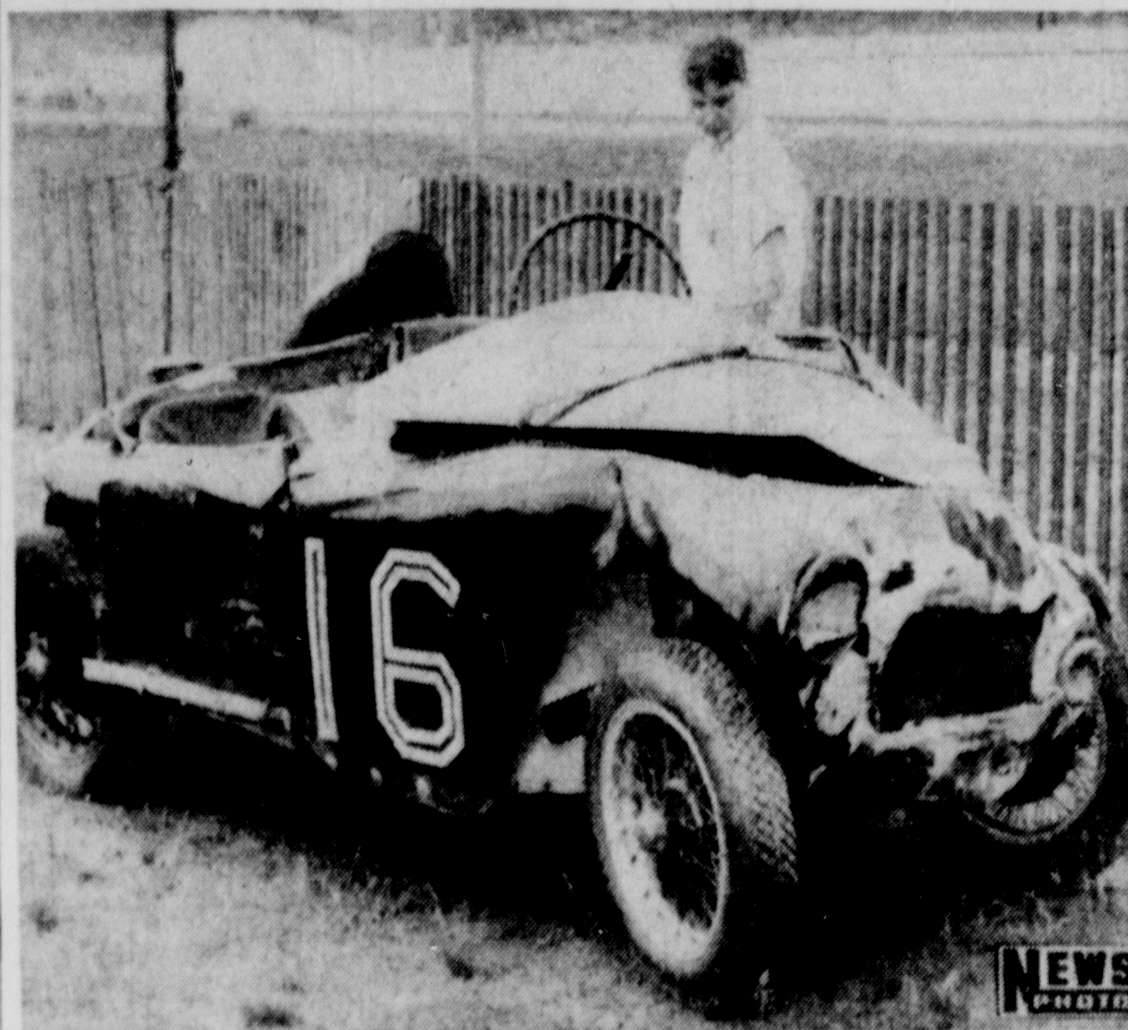

Opposed On Moral Grounds

"The question of whether liquor shall be sold legally at all has been answered affirmatively with the adoption and ratification of the Twenty-First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

"While this amendment does not make a distinction between Sunday and other days, I am one who believes that Sunday is a day special and apart from others. I believe it is a day on which to pray, read, meditate and rest; a day during which special attention should be given to reaffirming and strengthening our belief in God and those teachings He has set forth for our guidance; a day on which we should seek to elevate ourselves toward the Heavenly goal He offers to us."

"As a matter of personal moral and religious conviction, I believe the extension of the sale of liquor into Sunday is wrong because it violates the ageless admonition to 'Keep the sabbath day to sanctify it, as the Lord thy God has commanded thee.' Therefore, I would not support any move to extend hours for the selling of liquor into Sunday morning. How

Sports Car Damaged In Plunge

This is what was left of a Siata Special entered in yesterday's second race at the airport after its brakes failed and it plunged down a steep embankment off the back stretch of the 1.6 mile course and overturned several times. Louis John Jeffries, 34, of 1993 Tuxedo Street, Detroit, Mich., the driver, was admitted to Memorial Hospital with multiple lacerations of the face. He was reported in "satisfactory" condition at the hospital last night.

Services Set Tomorrow For Crash Victim

Services for Frank Junior Mayhew, 34-year-old Piedmont, W. Va., resident who was fatally injured in an auto crash early Saturday morning on State Route 135 near Westernport, will be conducted tomorrow at 1 p. m. at First Baptist Church in Westernport.

Rev. William B. Orndorff, pastor, will officiate and burial will be in Bloomington Cemetery.

Driver of the auto has been tentatively identified as Andrew Bernard Chupek, 35, of Jenners, Pa., who has been residing in Westernport.

He is a patient in Memorial Hospital where he was admitted Saturday afternoon after being located in Westernport. He suffered head, back and internal injuries and is reported in "fair" condition.

Identified By Passenger

Chupek has been tentatively identified as the driver of the fatal auto by Mrs. Junie Ellen Bennett, 21, of 51 Paxton Street, Piedmont, a passenger in the car, who also was hurt in the accident. She sustained a leg injury and is in "fair" condition at Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser.

State Trooper L. Wayne Lewis, who is investigating the fatal crash, said yesterday he plans to have Mrs. Bennett make a positive identification of the driver as soon as she is able to leave the hospital.

Trooper Lewis said he was informed at the scene of the accident that a "third man" had left the scene. The man was reported bleeding badly about the face, according to the witness.

A carpenter, Chupek has been working in the Tri-Towns area putting on house siding, police report. He was located Saturday afternoon in Westernport in the quarters of Daniel Eugene Stroke, Johnstown, Pa., resident, who has been working in the Tri-Towns area.

When located Saturday afternoon, Chupek was still bleeding from the mouth and from cuts about his face and back, Trooper Lewis said.

Stroke told authorities he had been at a party with Chupek, Mayhew and Mrs. Bennett. The group left for Keyser, Stroke said, adding that Chupek was driving the Mayhew car, and that he (Stroke) drove ahead in another vehicle.

Returns, Finds Wreckage

When the car reportedly operated by Chupek failed to reach Keyser, Stroke said he returned and found the wreckage of the Mayhew car off State Route 135, about a half-mile east of Westernport.

Stroke told police that Chupek refused to go to a hospital or see a doctor, so he took him to his quarters in Westernport.

Assisting in the investigation were Tfc. Milton Hart of the State Police, and Chief of Police Albert Barnard and Officer Russell McRoby of Westernport.

Maryland's primary election campaigners drove Sunday toward the Tuesday finish line under full steam.

Most attention centered on the hustling, heated race for Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

Tuesday's balloting will set the stage for the general election struggle next November between GOP and Democratic candidates for four statewide offices: governor, senator, comptroller and attorney general.

In addition, all seven Maryland seats in the House of Representatives are up for grabs this year, but all six who are seeking re-nomination will take the primary by default since they have no opposition.

Chairmen of the various committees made their reports for the past year following the installation of the officers.

The dinner was prepared by the Sisterhood of the congregation with Mrs. Simon Rosenbaum II as chairman of the committee.

Officer Powers said the Bruce auto had two young boys on each fender, according to witnesses in the Hyde car.

Hyde was treated at Sacred Heart Hospital for a leg injury and the Bruce youth was treated at the same hospital for a laceration above his left eye.

After the cars crashed almost headon, Officer Powers said one of the machines banged into a parked car along the road.

No charges have been placed in the accident pending an investigation, according to Officer Powers. Officer Clarence D. Valentine also investigated the accident.

AHS Students Conduct Mock Primary Vote

Mahoney, Manning Get Preference

The citizenship classes of Allegany High School's history department conducted a mock primary election last week.

On the Democratic ballot, students show a decided choice for George P. Mahoney for United States Senate. Those casting Democratic ballots gave Mahoney a total of 102 votes. His opponents tallied: Thomas D'Alesandro Jr., 61; Clarence D. Long, 18; James Bruce, 14; William F. Fidler Jr., 13; Andrew J. Easter, 11; and Alden A. Potter, 8. J. Millard Taves, candidate for governor, was easily the students' choice. He polled 121 votes while his opponents scored: Bruce S. Campbell, 45; Joseph A. Phillips, 33; and Morgan L. Amato, 12.

Foley For Congress

John R. Foley was the choice for member of the House of Representatives. He polled 82 votes. James H. Mann allied 46; David A. Heller, 36; Edward D. Storm, 34; and Richard Henry Seidel, 16.

Joseph L. Manning was the choice for state comptroller. He ran ahead of his opponents with 101 tallies. Louis L. Goldstein polled 72 and Sidney London, 40.

For county commissioners, a close race was evidenced between John Tucker Mason with 148; William J. Brode with 145; and John J. Rowan with 135. James P. Russell trailed with 80 and Francis J. Duckworth tallied 41. Three are nominated.

For Democratic State Central Committee, Thomas B. Finan, present chairman, led the ticket with 193 votes. Edward J. Ryan tallied 186; F. Allen Weatherholt, 185; Alex E. Patton, 167; William P. Kelly, 166; and C. William McDermott, 152, for the successful six. John R. Kelly was nosed out by a single tally, polling 151.

Few GOP Surprises

In the Republican mock primary, there seemed to be fewer surprises.

J. Glenn Beall, incumbent US Senator, polled 365 votes to the 14 of his opponent Henry J. Laque Jr.

Charles M. See, incumbent state senator, polled 281, while George R. Hughes Jr. tallied 111. For sheriff, Edward R. Muir, incumbent, tallied 200 and his lone opponent, William E. Orr Jr., 159.

For the House of Delegates, students were mistakenly advised to vote for seven, while actually only six delegates are selected. Thus the total tallies are off. However, the balloting showed:

Fred B. Driscoll, 227; Noel Speir Cook, 225; Estel C. Kelley, 217; Lester B. Reed, 217; Harold D. Brooks, 173; Thomas N. Berry, 166; Irvin Alexander, 163; David J. Williams, 154; John M. Robb, 151; Robert Lee Jeffrey, 142; Jack I. Mullen, 136; Lee C. Barnett Jr., 125; C. William H. Baer, 123; Harry T. Warnick, 107; Walter E. Mueller Sr., 97; Johnathan Sleeman, 75. Driscoll, Cook, Kelley, Reed, Williams and Berry are incumbents.

Davis Leads Field

In the much contested race for nominees for GOP County Commissioners, with three to be nominated, balloting was widely scattered with a newcomer, Glenn K. Davis, running far ahead of the field. He polled 248 tallies. Louis V. Shinnanon, another newcomer, was second with 203. Lee Marple finished in third place with 161. James Orr, incumbent, was fourth with 144 votes and the only other incumbent, William A. Wilson, finished fifth with 104.

Others for county commissioner ran as follows: Robert C. Hocking, 56; Charles N. Hill 52; Simon W. Green, 50; Okey E. Michael, 44; Harold L. Drew, 42; John J. Smith, 38; W. A. Strother, 32.

For judges of the Orphans Court, with three to be nominated, students gave James O. Marshall 269; William C. Abbott 258; J. French Vanmeter, 197; Hugh Stevenson, 183; and James G. Hadley, 152.

For members of the Republican State Central Committee, with seven to be elected, voting was fairly close for all candidates.

The results show: Woodrow W. Gurley, 263; Thomas W. Williams, 229; Edgar M. Lewis, 207; J. Kenneth Morgan, 195; Melvin S. Sloan, 185; Jerry G. Clise, 184; Edward T. Evans, 175; William Bantz, 172; Leonard D. Miller, 172; J. Irvin Martin, 159; Harry E. Shobe, 155; Thomas Elias, 146; Ernest B. Treat 138; Victor M. Pebb, 120.

Blue Cross Rate Hearing Set Today

BALTIMORE (AP) — Proposed Blue Cross hospitalization insurance rate increases come up for a hearing Monday before State Insurance Commissioner Charles S. Jackson.

Maryland Hospital Service, which operates Blue Cross, has asked for rate increases of about 22 per cent.

Blue Cross has more than one million subscribers in Maryland.

Nine spokesmen for organizations and individuals have filed notice with Jackson that they intend to testify at the hearing, scheduled for 10 a. m. at the city hall.

The majority of the spokesmen have been critical of the proposed rates.

Blue Cross has said higher rates are necessary as a result of increases in hospital costs.

The Maryland Radiological Society, in criticizing the proposed increases, declared that one third of the hospital admissions charged to Blue Cross are solely for diagnostic services although Blue Cross contracts "expressly exclude this benefit."

Another opponent of the rate boosts, Atty. Hyman A. Pressman, who represents a large group of subscribers, has charged that the proposed rates are "unreasonable." He also has contended the hospital service is wasting money by failing to investigate claims properly.

Bridge Play Will Start

The Cumberland Recreation Department has announced that bridge play will begin Friday, at 8 p. m. at the U. S. Naval Reserve Training Center on McKaig's Hill.

The program, which will be held every Friday night, is open to everyone, although it is primarily for persons who have taken the bridge course sponsored by the department.

Clarence C. DeHaven, bridge instructor of former classes held at Central YMCA, will act as a supervisor.

Over 300 persons attended some six classes sponsored by the department. The sixth class finished last Monday at Central YMCA.

Another class is planned for next fall, and persons interested in enrolling are asked to contact the Rec Department by calling PA 2-7360.

Two Women Are Injured In Unusual Mishap

Two women were injured yesterday afternoon in an unusual accident at the races at Cumberland Airport.

Admitted to Memorial Hospital were Mrs. Dorothy Edwards, 30, of 8 Turner Street, and Miss Mary Lou Kline, 29, Wiley Ford.

The hospital said Mrs. Edwards was injured as she got out of the car operated by Miss Kline and the auto started up before she was completely out. She was admitted for observation.

When Miss Kline saw that Mrs. Edwards was injured, she stopped, and as she got out of the car she twisted her right ankle and fractured it.

Also treated at Memorial Hospital last night was Ronald Hite, 18, of Valley Road, who sustained a possible fractured pelvis when he was kicked by a horse.

Chess Champ Denies 'Ouster'

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Maryland chess champion whose colleagues took action to oust him from a chess organization for alleged Communist activities says, "I am not now nor have I ever been" a member of the chess group in question.

Irving Kandel, who recently won the state chess title, pleaded the Fifth Amendment repeatedly before a congressional committee last year which labeled him the leader of the Communist Party in Maryland.

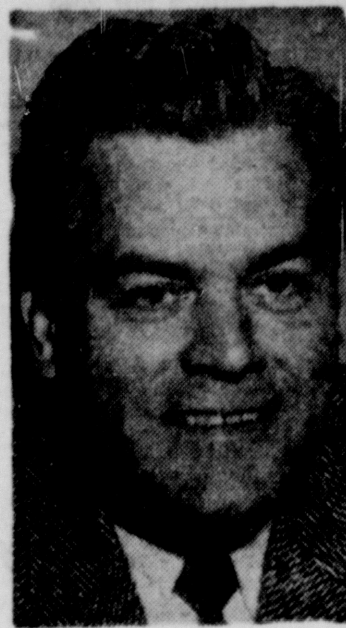

Kandel, referring to published reports that he was "ousted" from the Maryland Chess Federation, said he had never applied for membership in that group or its "apparent successor, the Maryland Chess Assn."

Earlier he had challenged Bruce, D'Alesandro and Mahoney to a TV debate, with the candidates sharing expenses. Preliminary arrangements with Bruce broke down when he and Long wound up in a name-calling session.

D'Alesandro and Mahoney never did indicate they would accept Long's invitation.

Sen. Beall, Republican up for re-election this year, said in a weekend statement that the Railway Labor's Political League and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen had endorsed him.

Beall is expected to have no trouble winning the primary from Henry J. Laque, Linthicum junk dealer who is his only opponent.

Trooper C. E. Dorsey, who investigated the car-truck crash Saturday night at 11 o'clock, said Gano was ascending Ebenezer Mountain near Romney when he crashed into the back of a truck that was carrying a tractor.

Trooper Dorsey said Gano died instantly of broken neck and Barnes died en route to a hospital in Winchester, Va., of a crushed chest. Both men were pinned in the wreckage and the trooper said it was some time before they could be removed from the car.

The truck, owned by Paul Nesbired of Elk Garden, W. Va., was being driven by Lynwood C. Shapeless of Kitzmiller. No charges have been filed in the case which is still being investigated by Trooper Dorsey.
